

We've built our reputation one client at a time—delivering the complete combination of workmanship, partnership and value.

"It's a real pleasure to work with people who know what to do and get it done right. The management team here at Viropharma appreciates your commitment to the project quality, schedule and cost. I feel we have established a strong relationship during the past six years and we're looking forward to continuing together on future projects."

*Dan Schroyer, Director Facility Services
Viropharma*

When it comes to commercial and institutional construction, most customers don't think they can get all three things they really want: quality, service and price. But talk to our clients. They'll tell you that we deliver the formula they want: superior workmanship and a collaborative relationship at a fair price.

It's a formula that produces lasting value and long-term relationships based on consistently meeting or exceeding your expectations.

It's also the cornerstone of a philosophy that says:

the best business relationships are based on mutual trust and reward. Our project management approach consistently satisfies our customers, producing long-term client relationships. We have acquired clients looking for the same kind of continuity, including The Boeing Company—a client since 1968—and GlaxoSmithKline, a client since 1957.

If this is the kind of relationship you value, let's work together.

We're small enough to provide a close working relationship yet big enough to provide full service.

We're also small enough to give the same attention to your smaller jobs that you ordinarily get only with larger projects.

That's because our highest priority is providing continuous communications. We avoid misunderstandings, anticipate problems and keep you apprised of the status of your project.

When you work with Paul Restall Company, Inc., you don't get lost in the shuffle of a big organization. Our staff consists of seasoned professionals with the experience—and the commitment—it takes to make the most demanding clients happy.

In fact, we demand as much of ourselves as our clients do, always looking for ways to serve you better.

"It's been 18 months since we opened the Hampton Inn and I wanted to pass along our compliments on how well this building 'works' for the hotel's owner, manager and customers. We were just awarded a designation as one of the top 10% of all Hampton Inns across the nation and I feel your firm deserves to share in this award due to the professional way in which you executed your construction management responsibilities on our behalf. We were particularly pleased with the pace and quality of the work involved in this project as well as the clear lines of communication with us."

William B. McNamara, President and General Partner Voorhees Hotel Corp.

SERVING A WIDE SPECTRUM OF ORGANIZATIONS

- Pharmaceutical research and manufacturing
- Industrial manufacturing
- Commercial institutions
- Healthcare, health and fitness
- Academic institutions
- Hotels